

Signagelive wants to assist their partners and customers to keep their teams informed while many are working from home during the current COVID-19 pandemic.

So they developed a new Signagelive player to enable organisations to create and curate digital messages and broadcast to the laptops, tablets and mobile phones of their colleagues, keeping everyone informed during the pandemic.

Signagelive Broadcast Player is now available for free to anyone, anywhere to use until the 30th June 2020. The dedicated web page includes a video explaining how the solution works and a form for those that wish to request a free licence.

The Signagelive Broadcast Player allows for full-screen playlists or multi-zone layouts to be created and published to a weblink. The weblink can then be shared with a team for them to view on their devices. Any updates to the content will automatically be updated and displayed to the viewers who have had the weblink shared with them.

To help get started, they have added COVID-19 content feeds from their partner Seenspire, which update automatically as new information and updates from the WHO and offer official sources are made available.

Go Free through June 2020: The Signagelive Broadcast Player

